INTRODUCTION

Welcome to JPM week in San Francisco!

Once again, I am so pleased to be able to welcome you to a busy (and hopefully sunny) January in San Francisco. I've been coming here for almost two decades to meet with our clients. This year I am so excited to be bringing a bigger team from Halloran and hosting our first Coffee for a Cause, to give back and support Special Olympics. The meetings and events around town this week are myriad, so keep this guide on hand to navigate so you can attend the "can't miss" events to maximize your productivity.

We work hard at Halloran to make life science companies better at what you do. We've learned that early-stage companies need seasoned expertise to lead their product development forward, and mature companies need practical expertise to retain the entrepreneurial agility that drives innovation.

The life science ecosystem has matured over the years and now is much more than a few multinational pharma companies; likewise, our work has matured and can be deployed as companies "grow up." We leverage our expertise in process efficiency, technology adoption, process harmonization, inspection readiness, and compliance programs to streamline your business and consequently save millions of dollars. Having the support of our team, who have "been there and done that," can transform your company from good to great.

We will be available throughout the week to brainstorm on your next milestone and help you get there. To learn more about Halloran, visit hallorancg.com or contact Maria Coakley at mcoakley@hallorancg.com so we connect in person.

Laurie Halloran

President & CEO, Halloran Consulting Group

Get set, GO! Welcome to another great edition of On Your Mark!

BigBio Communications is again proud to produce On Your Mark, the most complete annual guide for BioWeekSF, to help make your time in San Francisco a success! Quick updates on this year's guide:

- The conferences on the schedule and map are linked to their websites, you can click for more information
- Several conferences have special discounts in the "Event Spotlights" section
- Toward the end of the guide is a link to our special JPM Week-preparation webinar
- Also remember to reserve your spot in BIO2020 Pavilion in San Diego in June (see spotlight on page 25), which is also when we announce the launch of our upcoming BIONATION Network!

On behalf of all of us, we wish you a great BioWeekSF and success in 2020!

Tilton Little

CEO, BigBio Communications and Publisher, Big4Bio

CLOSING REMARKS

Welcome from Biocom

Biocom, the association representing the California life science industry for over 25 years, has a highly experienced team at the J.P. Morgan Healthcare Conference. We are here to fiercely represent our more than 1200 members across the Golden State and continue to do what we do best: advocate for our industry, act as a global gateway for our members, and lead as the undisputed bridge builder for life science clusters.

This week is about investment and capital, and we have built a robust statewide program for our members that is worth sharing with you. Biocom leadership regularly connects companies with sources of funding through a variety of dynamic programs, including angel investing, licensing and partnering opportunities, venture capital days, research grant insights and one-on-one discussions with big pharma. We have big plans for 2020, including our always sold-out Global Partnering Conference held in La Jolla from February 25 – 27. It is an intimate gathering of the best deal-makers in biotech and pharma—gathering for the 10th year—so secure your place now.

As the state's most experienced and influential advocacy organization, Biocom will continue to lead on the most important issues, such as our analysis of the potentially devastating effects of H.R. 3, the drug price control legislation proposed by Speaker Nancy Pelosi. The life science industry in California provides nearly 1.3 million jobs, with economic activity generating a total of $356 billion and NIH funding of $4.2 billion.

If passed, the legislation would reduce the supply of new drugs from California's life science industry by as much as 88 percent.

Biocom has a long history of engagement around the globe and we want to make JPM attendees aware of our strong bridges. First, Biocom has an office in Tokyo and we have many deep partnerships across Japan, the world's second-largest life science market. From Kobe to Yokohama, and with our partners Japan Bioscience Association and Link-J, we offer specialized connecting and consulting services in California and Japan.

Biocom proudly serves as the world's largest statewide biotechnology association with members who dare to imagine a healthier future for mankind.

Sincerely, Joe Panetta

President & CEO, Biocom, the Life Science Association of California

Welcome from CLSA

On behalf of The California Life Sciences Association, I would like to welcome everyone to the impactful events and discussions taking place in and around the 2019 JP Morgan Healthcare Conference.

Here in California – the fifth largest economy in the world – we are proud of our life sciences sector that spans world-renowned research institutions, entrepreneurial startups, academia and innovative global corporations advancing ground-breaking science for patients. California's life sciences sector continues to be a medical and economic powerhouse. More than 3,600 life sciences companies directly and indirectly employ 958,000 Californians and contribute a staggering $178 billion to California's overall economy. This sector led the nation in venture capital investments – a total of $7.6 billion – providing critical support for continuing breakthroughs. We put over 1,300 new therapies in the pipeline. Our life sciences ecosystem thrives and continues to be a beacon and a model not just for the rest of the United States but around the globe.

As the statewide trade association for life sciences in California, the work CLSA does has significant impact for every member of our life sciences community, including:

- Leading federal, state and local advocacy for effective public policies to help safeguard California's place as the leader in biomedical, environmental research and development;
- Hosting CLSA's annual Pantheon DiNA™ Awards to honor the bold thinkers – founders, innovators, patients and next-generation leaders - who courageously drive advances in our sector and whose vision creates the impact that California companies are making here and around the globe; and
- Supporting the next wave of life sciences through the California Life Sciences Institute's FAST program, which has resulted in more than 7300 advisory hours valued at over $1,600,000, over $1 billion in raised capital, and 397 new jobs for the 65 emerging companies who have participated since Fall 2013.

Please join us in recognizing the impact of every life sciences organization and professional who improves our lives each day through their dedication, talent and determination.

Sincerely, Mike Guerra

President & CEO, California Life Sciences Association
